

PASSAE 2024

Passau Summer School for Applied Ethics

#Kant: Digitalization – Europe – Sustainability

2. – 6. September 2024

Call for Applications

Open to students from all disciplines

Digitalization, sustainability, and the future of Europe are three major contemporary challenges. Immanuel Kant, whose 300th birthday will be widely celebrated in 2024, developed his philosophy on the verge of modernity, in the age of Enlightenment. The first Passau Summer School for Applied Ethics invites its participants to creatively engage in the question of how Kant's thoughts and concepts might prove fruitful for dealing with contemporary challenges: Which aspects of Kant's practical philosophy might prove relevant, or even shed new light on current problems? Which are the possible pitfalls of Kantian arguments?

Want to be part of PASSAE? We will discuss current ethical issues with philosophical experts and students from various European universities and a variety of disciplines. We will work creatively and communicate our thoughts to the public. Last not least, we will enjoy Passau and its beautiful surroundings in summer.
